The University of Alabama is a special place, and it holds a cherished place in the hearts of the UA family. It is a bright light that attracts excellence. That is also true of the National Alumni Association. The honor rolls in the following pages are evidence of that excellence.

I want to personally thank the more than 34,000 members and donors who made it possible for the NAA to award approximately $4.7 million in scholarship assistance to more than 2,400 current students. Along with an operating budget of more than $1 million, your Alumni Association manages more than 450 scholarship endowments with a corpus value of more than $35 million. Just this past year, 25 new scholarships were endowed. Additionally, 631 students who are children or grandchildren of active NAA members received Alumni Heritage Scholarships and/or Alumni Scholar Awards. Because of your support and generosity, students’ lives are being changed. Every gift, regardless of its size, is important.

With nationally ranked academic programs, exciting campus-life opportunities, beautiful grounds and a world-class administration, faculty and staff, The University of Alabama continues to attract the best and brightest students. The NAA’s 103 active chapters across the state and nation, along with alumni everywhere, are helping to recruit students and lend invaluable support to the University. It’s important to continue our membership growth so we can offer even more scholarships to prospective students and more services to UA and its graduates.

It is a privilege for me to serve you and The University of Alabama as your association president this year. I encourage you to be active and involved in your local chapter and invite other alumni and friends to become members of our association. I look forward to seeing many of you at alumni events on campus and at chapter events around the country. Thanks for your love and support for The University of Alabama.

Roll Tide!

Jimmy Warren

2013–2014 Honor Rolls | 3
Maycomb was an old town, but it was a tired old town when I first knew it. In rainy weather the streets turned to red slop; grass grew on the sidewalks, the courthouse sagged in the square. Somehow, it was hotter then: a black dog suffered on a summer’s day; bony mules hitched to Hoover carts flicked flies in the sweltering shade of the live oaks on the square. Men’s stiff collars wilted by nine in the morning. Ladies bathed before noon, after their three-o’clock naps, and by nightfall were like soft teacakes with frostings of sweat and sweet talcum.

People moved slowly then. They ambled across the square, shuffled in and out of the stores around it, took their time about everything. A day was twenty-four hours long but seemed longer. There was no hurry, for there was nowhere to go, nothing to buy and no money to buy it with, nothing to see outside the boundaries of Maycomb County. But it was a time of vague optimism for some of the people: Maycomb County had recently been told that it had nothing to fear but fear itself.

We lived on the main residential street in town—Atticus, Jem and I, plus Calpurnia, who kept house. Jem and I found our father satisfactory: he played with us, read to us, and treated us with courteous detachment.

Calpurnia was something else again. She was all angles and bones; she was as tall as a bed spring and was wide as a bed spread. She wore old dresses and was ordering me about as well as Jem when I wasn’t really Calpurnia’s son. She always took her time, and I had felt her type. Our mother was away; she was in the absence. She was away when Jem was middle-aged; I have no product of her, born, and I don’t think Jem was either. I don’t think Jem was the same. I think he was a different boy, went on playing by himself behind the car-house. When he was like that, I knew better than to bother him.

When I was almost six and Jem was nearly ten, our sum-

Due to the outstanding generosity of our donors, the lists of Alumni Heritage Scholarship and Alumni Scholar Award recipients are now too lengthy for inclusion in the printed booklet, and can be found online in a full scholarship listing at alumni.ua.edu/scholarships.
A Message From the Director

It has been another great year for your National Alumni Association. The publication you hold in your hands is indeed an honor roll, and in this section we honor our loyal and generous supporters. The names included in the following pages represent more than just financial contributions; they represent individuals and families who sincerely love The University of Alabama.

The love and support you have shown your National Alumni Association allows us to help further the mission of the University. Your contributions and hard work in alumni chapters across the country continue to help attract the best and brightest students to the Capstone. The student population is larger and more diverse than ever, yet the quality of students attending UA has never been better.

The staff at Alumni Hall works extremely hard to merit your continued support. Whether it’s designing a customized Discovering BAMA tour for a prospective student and their family; coordinating an event for one of our many active alumni chapters; assisting and advising an alumnus or friend to endow a scholarship; working to enlarge the membership of our NAA family; or publishing our award-winning Alabama Alumni Magazine, everyone here strives to make your Alumni Association and alma mater among the very best in the nation.

You are an integral part of our team, and our success is attributed to your involvement. Thank you! To learn more about all that is taking place in the National Alumni Association, visit our website at alumni.ua.edu.

Member contributions for 2013 totaled $2,300,079, and the following list recognizes individuals who gave unrestricted donations to the Alumni Fund in the amount of $100 or more during the calendar year.

Best Wishes and Roll Tide!

Calvin J. Brown, BS ’81, MA ’83
Director of Alumni Affairs

Calvin Brown’s favorite book by an Alabama author is Harper Lee’s To Kill a Mockingbird, and his favorite passage is from the famous courtroom scene: Reverend Sykes’s voice was as distant as Judge Taylor’s: “Miss Jean Louise, stand up. Your father’s passin’.”

The restaurant, a few blocks from the courthouse, was crowded, as were all the restaurants in the area at this hour, and Bill and Krieger had to wait standing for several moments. At various tables Bill recognized a few judges, defense attorneys, prosecutors, FBI agents, alleged mafiosi, convicts, court stenographers, bail bondsmen. They were all having lunch in the same big room—the accused and the accusers. They were coworkers in the crime industry, they kept the wheels turning in the big gray court buildings in Foley Square where decisions were hammered out five days a week, supplying jobs for jail keepers and magistrates, barristers and bondsmen, providing news for the press and customers for restaurants—they all fed off one another.

14 | National Alumni Association
day in Jackson Square an watchin the other fruitcakes do they thing.

I done bought a bicycle with two little sidecars for Sue an Dan to ride in, an ever Sunday we peddle down to the river an set on the bank an go catfishin. Jenny writes me once ever month or so, an sends me pictures of little Forrest. Last one I got showed him dressed up in a shiny football suit. They is a girl here that we know, an she is one of the strip joints an ever once in a while she comes in. An ass aroun. Wanda is her name. A lot of times, me an ole Sue and an jus cruise aroun the French Quarter an see the sights, an believe me, they is some odd-lookin people there besides us—look like they might be lef over from the Russian Revolution or some-thing.

A guy from the hospital they want to do a study on the “best one-man band” he ever heard. I got questions bout my life. But even before they can’t print nothing, I believe it.

But let me tell you this: sometimes at night, when I look up at the stars, an see the whole sky jus laid out there, don’t you think I ain’t rememberin it all. I still got dreams like anybody else, an ever so often, I am thinkin about how things might of been. An then, all of a sudden, I’m forty, fifty, sixty years ole, you know? Well, so what? I may be a idiot, but most of the time, anyway, I tried to do the right thing—an dreams is jus dreams, ain’t they? So whatever else has happened, I am figgerin this: I can always look back an say, at least I ain’t led no hum-drum life.

You know what I mean?

The first memory I have is of a tall blond woman who drags a canvas cotton sack along an undulating row of rust-colored ground, through a field that seems to reach into the back forty of forever. I remember the sound it makes as it slides between the chest-high stalks that are so deeply, darkly green they look almost black, and the smell of kicked-up dust, and sweat. The tall woman is wearing a man’s britches and a man’s old straw hat, and now and then she looks back over her shoulder to smile at the three-year-old boy whose hair is almost as purely white as the bolls she picks, who rides the back of the six-foot-long sack like a magic carpet.

It is my first memory, and the best. It is sweeter than the recollection I have of the time she sat me down in the middle of a wild strawberry patch and let me eat my way out again, richer than all the times she took me swimming in jangling rock in the water that was not real gold, with a lump of red jewelry clothes from the Salvation Army box that ring, just sometimes, for a smile of glass, but I was pretty close to one, and if the sun had come shining, even though her toes poked out of the dirt, I would have put my hand up and said, “Take it, Pa!”

The vast field that once it is a warm, safe, and proud thing left me spirit-numbing place of carried us, with welfare check the could have lived on the fifty-dollar one way that old terror, old pain squeezed my daddy into a prison of empty whiskey bottles. I asked her, many years later, if the strap of the sack cut deeper into her back and shoulders because I was there. “You wasn’t heavy,” she said.

ALL OVER BUT THE SHOUTIN’

I look deep into her rich brown eyes and she look into mine. Law, she got old-soul eyes, like she done lived a thousand years. And I swear I see, down inside, the woman she gone grow up to be. A flash from the future. She is tall and straight. She is proud. She got a better haircut. And she is remembering the words I put in her head. Remembering as a full-grown woman.

And then she say, “You is kind,” she say, “you is smart. You is important.”

“Oh Law.” I hug her hot little body to me. I feel like she done just given me a gift. “Thank you, Baby Girl.”

“Miss Leefolt come into the kitchen.”

“Aibilee,” Miss Hilly walk in. “Miss Leefolt come into the kitchen. Miss Hilly walk in. She look real guilty.”

“I’m sorry, Aibilee. Hilly, if you want to… press charges, that’s up to you.”

Miss Hilly sniff at me and say, “It’s not worth my time.”

whenever I’d get to pestering him so bad, he’d say, ‘Now, Ninny, it’s time for your B-12 shot.’ And he’d give me a B-12 shot right in the backside.

“I got out and walked every day alongside the railroad tracks, up and down, just like I’re a woman, and pretty soon I had walked my way right through it and I was back to normal.”

“But I thought I was too young to be going through it,” Evelyn said. “I just turned forty-eight.”

“Oh no, honey, lots of women go through it early. Why, there was this woman over in Georgia who was only thirty-six years old, and one day she got in her car and drove right up the stairs of the county courthouse, rolled down her window, and tossed her mother’s head, that she had just chopped off in her kitchen, at a state policeman, and hollered, ‘Here, this is what you wanted,’ and drove right back down the courthouse stairs. Now, do you think you could do for you if you’re not careful?”

“Do you think I’m up and down, do you think I’m up and down, do you think I’m up and down, do you think I’m up and down?” Evelyn asked Mrs. Threadgoode if she ever got depressed.

Mrs. Threadgoode answered truthfully. “No honey, I cain’t say I have been lately, I’m too busy being grateful for His blessings—why, I’ve had so many blessings I cain’t even count them. Now, don’t get me wrong, everybody’s got their sorrows, and some more than most.”

“But you seem so happy, like you never had a care in the world.”

Mrs. Threadgoode laughed at the thought. “Oh honey, I’ve buried myshare, and each one hurt as bad as the last one. And there have been times when I’ve wondered why the good Lord handed me so many sorrowful burdens, to the point where I thought I just couldn’t stand it one more day. But He only gives you what you can handle and no more . . . and I’ll tell you this: You cain’t dwell on sadness, oh, it’ll make you sick faster than anything in this world.”

I had no schooling whatever while I was a slave, though I remember on several occasions I went as far as the schoolhouse door with one of my young mistresses to carry her books. The picture of several dozen boys and girls in a schoolroom engaged in study made a deep impression upon me, and I had the feeling that to get into a schoolhouse and study in this way would be about the same as getting into paradise.

So far as I can now recall, the first knowledge that I got of the fact that we were slaves, and that freedom of the slaves was being discussed, was early one morning before day when I was awakened by my mother kneeling over her children in fervent prayer that Lincoln and his armies might be successful and her children might be free. In this connection I do not understand how the slaves throughout the South were the masses so far as books or newspapers. I collected them to keep themselves so accurately and completely informed about the great National questions that were agitating the country. From the time that Garrison, Lovejoy, and others began to agitate for freedom, the slaves throughout the South kept in close touch with the progress of the movement. Though I was a mere boy during the war it was common for the Negroes in our plantation to deliberate over these discussions that I have just mentioned. Many of them understood the situation, and they indulged in the “grapevine” method of communication.

During the canvass for the Presidency, the slaves could get no information from any railroad of what was going on. When war was begun, the slaves on the plantation fell into two classes, the primal one was that admittance of Negroes into the army and the great result of one great result of the war was the emancipation of the slaves. I was always the same as getting into paradise.

I had no schooling whatever while I was a slave, though I remember on several occasions I went as far as the schoolhouse door with one of my young mistresses to carry her books. The picture of several dozen boys and girls in a schoolroom engaged in study made a deep impression upon me, and I had the feeling that to get into a schoolhouse and study in this way would be about the same as getting into paradise.

She still had eleven thousand dollars, after paying that bartender in New Orleans to drop the auto-theft charges against her. She would give that money to Meemaw to look after the children while she was in jail.

But eleven thousand would run out in no time, and then what would she do?

Should have thought about this when you were throwing it away on dresses and hats.

For her final appearance, she selected her most demure outfit, tailored fuzzy-pink suit and a plain silk white blouse. All day she sat on her cot, hearing the Duboces’ complaints while she leafed through back issues of Life magazine.

At last the time came to spritz herself with Charles of the Desert and go face the lawyers, the judge, her fate.

Lucille thought the judge was a fair man, and she admired Larry Russell for doing what he could for her, but she considered Hubert Mackie a horrid little pig of a man. She wished his other hand would shrivel up. How could a prosecutor do that and make him testify against his Aunt Beulah?

She had wince and wish it wasn’t his fault, the heart, she saw him end it wasn’t Pappy’s.

Now they took her and her whole face and hair and frowsy house and undercurrent of a city off and put bags on their legs.

“Now listen, be prepared for anything, because it is, keep in mind.”

“What’s the weapon?”

“I think you know what I mean. Review the report, you walk up to him, you do what he tells you, you let him get him riled.

“Will they let me out of here?”

“Most times the sentence begins immediately. I’ll see if I can talk to him.”

“Alright, go on!” The bailiff brought down the mercy of God on the proceedings, and Judge Mead bustled in, looking cheerful as ever. His bowtie of Science, its imperfections notwithstanding, is the sword in the stone that humanity finally pulled. The question it poses, of universal and orderly materialism, is the most important that can be asked in philosophy and religion. Its procedures are not easy to master, even to conceptualize; that is why it took so long to get started, and then mostly in one place, which happened to be western Europe. The work is also hard and for long intervals frustrating. You have to be a bit compulsive to be a productive scientist.

Behind the mere smash and grab of the smaller pieces lies a deeper agenda that also takes the form of reductionism to fold the laws and principles of each level of organization into those at more general, hence more fundamental levels. Its strong form is total consilience, which holds that nature is organized by simple universal laws of physics to which all other laws and principles can eventually be reduced. This transcendental world view is the light and way for many scientific materialists (I admit to being among them), but it could be wrong. At the least, it is surely an oversimplification. At each level of organization, we know that phenomena exist that require new laws that cannot be predicted from those at more general levels. Beyond our grasp. But the hope for deeper general levels is in what give science its metaphysical excitement.

CONSILIENCE: THE UNITY OF KNOWLEDGE
by E.O. Wilson

Science, its imperfections notwithstanding, is the sword in the stone that humanity finally pulled. The question it poses, of universal and orderly materialism, is the most important that can be asked in philosophy and religion. Its procedures are not easy to master, even to conceptualize: that is why it took so long to get started, and then mostly in one place, which happened to be western Europe. The work is also hard and for long intervals frustrating. You have to be a bit compulsive to be a productive scientist.

Factors to consider before embarking on a career in science include: (1) the time it takes to get a Ph.D.; (2) the nature of the academic job market; (3) the rewards available; and (4) the social environment of the academic community. These factors can be summarized as follows: If you choose an academic career you will need forty hours a week to perform teaching and administrative duties, another people who try to talk down to my understanding. They are like people who when walking with you try to shorten their steps to suit yours; the hypocrisy in both cases is equally exasperating.

The hands of those I meet are dumbly eloquent to me. The touch of some hands is an impertinence. I have met people so empty of joy, that when I clasped their frosty finger-tips, it seemed as if I were shaking hands with a northeast storm. Others there are whose hands have sunbeams in them, so that their grasp warms my heart. It may be only the clinging touch of a child’s hand, but there is as much potential sunshine in it for me as there is in a loving glance for others. A hearty handshake or a friendly letter gives me genuine pleasure.

I have many far-off friends whom I have never seen. Indeed they are so many that I have often been unable to reply to their letters; but I wish to say here that I am always grateful for their kind words, however insufficiently I acknowledge them.

I count it one of the sweetest privileges of my life to have known and conversed with many who knew Bishop Brooks.* They who possessed my joy in life, and I never grew in beauty and grace as I did to know why there was no such religion, Helen, with your whole heart. You can, and remember the possibilities of evil; your happy illustration of knowledge were blest.

God in all that life,
In all that humble

Bishop Brooks taught me no special creed or dogma; but he impressed upon my mind two great ideas—the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, and made me feel that these truths underlie all creeds and

But when Denise was sick again the following morning, she knew at once that she’d really known the first time, or even before that. Perhaps she’d always known that things would turn out something like this for both of them.

She put her arms around Denise and let her cry. Fall had arrived, not with burnt orange and winey air this year, but grey skies and mists of rain. In the drab early morning, with her daughter’s head on her shoulder, Edythe stared dry-eyed before her, the way she’d once seen a country neighbor stand and watch her house burn down, its glowing rafters collapsing at last into the heart of the flames.

“Mama will stand by you,” she said, and tightened her arms. “Do you know who’s to blame?”

Denise shook her head and sobbed harder. Then she pulled away to face her mother with wet, contorted face.

“Me!” she sobbed. “I’m the one to blame. Oh, mama, mama, what will we do?”

“We’ll do the best we can do.”

When he called at night, she said to Edythe, full of tenderness.

It was two o’clock early morning on the day he called at her door, just for a little while.” she said. “I’ll put on a full skirt and peasants and Denise goodbyes.

Stanhope had seemed so much younger.

“We might as well take folks over, and let me alone. I’ve been asking his old light spirt if it’ll disappoint you?”

Later, that was as far as Edythe let herself remember, most of the time. Not that the rest was less dear. She’d told him that it had to Ships at a distance have every man’s wish on board. For some they come in with the tide. For others they sail forever on the horizon, never out of sight, never landing until the Watcher turns his eyes away in resignation, his dreams mocked to death by Time. That is the life of men.

Now, women forget all those things they don’t want to remember, and remember everything they don’t want to forget. The dream is the truth. Then they act and do things accordingly.

The visitor shook his head in disbelief and hurried for the stairs.

“But I seen it myself! I seen it myself!” he kept repeating as Judge Cochrane escorted him down the hall and out the back door.

“Thank you for being concerned,” the judge said wearily. “Good night.”

“How many times has it happened now?” Judge Cochrane asked himself as he climbed back into bed. “And when will she stop burning those damned candles?”

The “she” he referred to was Sarah Drish, builder and longtime resident of what is now known as the Old Drish Place in Tuscaloosa. Mrs. Drish was a gentle, intelligent woman, but, according to tales told about her home, it is her friend among the neighborhood by her which she

Ways to Give

A gift to the Alumni Fund of The University of Alabama’s National Alumni Association can take many forms. It can be:

- a gift of cash
- a gift of stocks, bonds, real estate or other property (art, books, etc.)
- a corporate matching gift
- a gift through your will or living trust
- a charitable trust or other life income plan
- a named beneficiary in your retirement or insurance policy or certificate of deposit

You can also use the above options to create an endowment gift to the National Alumni Association in support of its scholarship program. Perhaps the most rewarding aspect of establishing an endowed scholarship fund is that it allows you to directly accomplish your goals in giving while helping the University achieve its institutional initiatives through the NAA. The principal is invested in the UA System Pooled Endowment Fund for safe growth over time, and the annual endowment income from this investment enables the Alumni Association to award scholarships to qualified recipients each year, according to the terms agreed upon by you and the association. Scholarship endowments may be established by individuals, businesses or alumni chapters, and gifts may be given over a period of five years. You can also add to your endowment, beyond the minimum funding level, through lifetime gifts and through a beneficiary designation in your estate plan.

“Well. Reckon we’ll send to Columbus for somebody, then.”

I closed my eyes. “No, ma’am, Miss Mary Frances. Don’t do that. I’ll come.”

“Good girl! Come on now, bring your stuff, and come to the back door, okay?”

She hung up before I could say another word. I hugged the phone to me, my heart fluttering like the wings of a hummingbird. Oh, Lord, what had I got myself into? Why didn’t they tell us at the beauty college we’d have things like this when we got out in the real world, got our own shop? If I had someone working for me, I could send them. But no, it was only me, and I had no choice. I was going to keep Aunt Essie’s customers. Truth was I couldn’t afford to lose even one customer, let alone all the blue-haired ladies in Clarksville.

I went to the cabinet and picked up a bottle of Shell Pink, the kind with jagged teeth. Fortunately I inherited Aunt Essie’s collection. Then Miss Maudie’d get under the dryer so the waves could set, and Aunt Essie’d polish her tiny little fingernails, always a natural rosy-pink. Shell Pink, I remembered, and added a bottle to the roller bag. I figured they hadn’t been doing Miss Maudie’s fingernails at that nursing home in Tuscaloosa. She ought to have them done for the laying out, she had such pretty little hands. Usually they’re crossed at the waist, with a Bible or something in them. It would be a shame for people to file by Miss Maudie’s coffin and notice she needed a manicure.

I couldn’t help but smile, though. Miss Maudie, bless her sweet old heart, never had a curling iron or blow-dryer touch her head, not with her old-timey hairdo. I’d never fixed it myself, but many was the time I’d watched Aunt Essie do it. She’d part Miss Maudie’s thick white hair in the middle, then take her fingers and mold it into big, deep waves. Each wave had to be painstakingly clipped in place with curved metal clips, which they don’t make anymore, the kind with jagged teeth. Fortunately I inherited Aunt Essie’s collection.

About the Alabama Authors

HARPER LEE
Lee was born and raised in the small town of Monroeville, Ala., on which To Kill a Mockingbird is loosely based. She attended UA in the 1940s and received an honorary doctorate in literature from the University in 1991. Her novel, which won the Pulitzer Prize in 1961, has been translated into more than 50 languages and made into an Oscar-winning film starring Gregory Peck. Today, Lee lives a quiet life in her hometown.

GAY TALESE
Originally from New Jersey, Talese chose to travel South to attend UA. After graduating in 1953 with a journalism degree, he became a reporter for the New York Times, Esquire, The New Yorker, Harper’s Magazine and several other national publications. He has authored 11 books, and his groundbreaking article “Frank Sinatra Has a Cold” was named the “best story Esquire ever published.” In 2013, he received the Harper Lee Award from the Alabama Writers’ Forum. He resides in New York City.

WINSTON GROOM
Groom was raised in Baldwin County, Ala., and received an English degree from UA in 1965 and an honorary doctorate in 2000. He served in the Army in Vietnam and subsequently worked as a reporter in D.C. He returned to Mobile in 1985, where he wrote his most famous novel, Forrest Gump, which made him a best-selling author when it was adapted into a 1994 film of the same name. He was presented with the Harper Lee Award in 2011. Groom, who lives in Point Clear, Ala., has most recently written several books about American history.

RICK BRAGG
Bragg grew up in the small community of Possum Trot near Jacksonville, Ala. He won a Pulitzer Prize in 1996 while working at the New York Times. Known for telling the stories of his people and the land from which they came, Bragg has authored multiple books in addition to All Over but the Shoutin’, including Ava’s Man, The Prince of Frogtown and Somebody Told Me, a collection of his newspaper stories. He was the winner of the 2009 Harper Lee Award. Bragg lives in Tuscaloosa, Ala., where he is the Cason Professor of Writing in the UA journalism department.

KATHRYN STOCKETT
Stockett was born in Jackson, Miss., and graduated from UA with an English degree in 1991. Her debut novel, The Help, was rejected by 60 literary agents before it was published. The book spent more than 100 weeks on the New York Times Best Seller List and won numerous awards, including the Townsend Prize for Fiction and the SIBA Book Award in 2010. The film adaptation of the same name, released in 2011, was nominated for three Academy Awards. She lives in Atlanta.

FANNIE FLAGG
Flagg was born in Birmingham, Ala., and attended UA in the 1960s. She worked as an actress, talk show host and comedian until she devoted herself to full-time writing in 1980. Fried Green Tomatoes, her most successful novel, remained on the New York Times Best Seller List for 36 weeks. A 1991 film screenplay adapted from the book was nominated for an Academy Award. In 2001, Flagg won the Alabama State Council on the Arts Distinguished Artist Award, and in 2012, the Harper Lee Award. She now spends her time writing from her homes in California and Alabama.
BOOKER T. WASHINGTON
Known as the founder of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial School Institute (now Tuskegee University), Washington was a leading voice for blacks in the struggle to gain civil rights in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. He was born a slave and would continue on to become an inspiring teacher and leader in the black community until his death at age 59 in 1915. He is buried on the campus of Tuskegee University in Macon County, Ala., and his home, The Oaks, is part of the Tuskegee Institute National Historic Site.

MARK CHILDRESS
Born in Monroeville, Ala., Childress earned a communication degree from UA in 1978 and worked as a reporter for several newspapers, including the Birmingham News, before devoting his full attention to writing fiction in 1987. His most famous work, Crazy in Alabama, was a featured selection of the 1993 Literary Guild and a New York Times “Notable Book of the Year.” A film based on the novel was released in 1999. Childress, who lives in Key West, Fla., was the winner of the 2014 Harper Lee Award.

EDWARD O. WILSON
Wilson is a renowned naturalist, biologist and theorist. Born in Birmingham, Ala., he received two degrees in biology from UA, a bachelor’s in 1949 and a master’s in 1950. His book On Human Nature won a Pulitzer Prize in 1978, and in 1990, his book The Ants also won a Pulitzer. He has received the National Medal of Science and the Gold Medal of the Worldwide Fund for Nature. He retired from teaching at Harvard in 1996, and continues to write from his home in Lexington, Mass.

HELEN KELLER
Keller was born in Tuscumbia, Ala., and at a young age contracted an illness that left her deaf and blind. Despite those obstacles, she learned both to speak and write and became internationally known for her activism on behalf of workers’ and women’s rights, her literary work, and her tenure as an unofficial U.S. ambassador to the world. While in college, Keller undertook an essay assignment that evolved into a magazine serial and then into her 1903 autobiography, The Story of My Life. She passed away in 1968.

MARY WARD BROWN
Brown grew up in Perry County, Ala., and attended UA in the 1950s. Although she was published in several magazines throughout her life, she did not achieve notoriety as a writer until her late 60s, when her first collection of short stories, Tongues of Flame, was published in 1986. Brown received the Harper Lee Award in 2002 with the release of her second collection of short stories, It Wasn’t All Dancing. Her writing focused on the everyday lives and struggles of Southerners. She passed away in 2013.

ZORA NEALE HURSTON
Hurstons four novels and two books of folklore were the result of extensive anthropological research from the South, the Caribbean and Latin America, and have proven valuable resources on the oral culture of African-Americans. An influential member of the Harlem Renaissance, she also wrote more than 50 short stories. Born in Notasulga, Ala., she is best known for her novel Their Eyes Were Watching God. In 2005, TIME included the book in its list of the 100 best English-language novels published since 1923. Hurston died in 1960.
KATHRYN TUCKER WINDHAM
Windham, a storyteller, author, photographer and journalist, was born in Selma, Ala., and raised in nearby Thomasville, Ala. She is best known for her series of ghost story collections, beginning with 13 Alabama Ghosts and Jeffrey. Early in her career, she was a reporter for the Alabama Journal and the Birmingham News, and later for the Selma Times-Journal, with which she won several Associated Press awards for her writing and photography. She died in 2011 at the age of 93. Many of her works can be seen at the Kathryn Tucker Windham Museum at Alabama Southern Community College.

CASSANDRA KING
King, who was born in lower Alabama, is the author of five novels, most recently the critically acclaimed Moonrise, in 2013. Her short fiction and essays have appeared in numerous anthologies and journals. Aside from writing, she has taught college courses and seminars on writing, worked as a human-interest reporter and published an article about her second-favorite pastime in Cooking Light magazine. She lives in South Carolina with her husband, novelist Pat Conroy.

BARBARA PARK
A popular children's book author, Park is best known for her award-winning Junie B. Jones series, which included 29 books. The New Jersey native graduated from UA in 1969 with a degree in science education, and was a longtime resident of Scottsdale, Ariz. For more than two decades, school-age readers have enjoyed the fictional character of Jones, a kindergartener best known for her outspoken personality. Park won seven Children's Choice Awards and four Parents' Choice Awards for the series. She died in 2013.

My name is Junie B. Jones. The B stands for Beatrice. Except I don’t like Beatrice. I just like B and that’s all.

I go to kindergarten. My room is named Room Nine. There are lots of rules in that place.

“Boys and girls, have your attention, please?” said our teacher. “We’re going to be talking about careers you can have when you grow up.”

“Yeah, and I thought we were going to be talking about something very important,” Mrs. Jones replied.

“Sorry, Mrs. Jones,” I said. “I never even heard the word careers before. And I don’t know what the heck we’re talking about.”

Mrs. Jones made squinty eyes at me. “A career...”
